

Invitation for ACTMOST Industry Workshop

Learn how the European access centre "ACTMOST" can facilitate your industrial product innovations through micro-photonics technology support, services and trainings - free of charge.

ACTMOST is a consortium of 14 high-tech research laboratories from 6 European member states that have joined to become a unique "one-stop-shop" solutions provider for micro-photonics technologies. ACTMOST will provide European companies with timely, cost-effective, and investment-free access to professional, cutting-edge micro-photonics technologies and knowledge to support the development of new products.

ACTMOST will organize its first workshop for Industry on December 3rd 2010 in Brussels, Belgium. During a half day program you will learn more about the different opportunities and added value that ACTMOST can provide to your company. This workshop is FREE and is open to all European companies interested in product innovation with micro-photonics.
